University College Lillebælt (UCL) is among the largest university colleges in Denmark, with 5 campuses in the region of Southern Denmark. It offers more than 40 higher education programs in their faculties of Business Science, Technology and Construction, Education, Social Sciences and Health Sciences.

UCL migrated from their previous platform to itslearning in 2017. UCL has identified the importance of supporting students to develop the technological necessary skills to succeed in their professions. UCL has also made use of the student data in itslearning to engage their students, predict learning outcomes and student dropouts. An LMS that is easy-to-use like itslearning, is key to help UCL achieving their educational goals.

“Our motivation is to create a richer, better, and more inspiring learning experience. Since we selected itslearning as our learning platform, we have had a successful implementation and it is now used in the entire institution of UCL. Everything starts and ends in itslearning, and we are happy about that.”

Chief Information Officer
